THE GAS SAFETY
REGISTER IN NORTHERN IRELAND
HAS CHANGED*

IT IS NOW CALLED GAS SAFE REGISTER

Gas Safe Register replaced CORGI gas registration in Northern Ireland on 1 April 2010. It is the official hallmark for gas safety. If you do gas work you will need to be registered with Gas Safe Register. Registration is a legal requirement and your status as a registered business is evidence that you are working legally and you are competent and safe to work with gas.

The Gas Safe Register mark acts as a symbol of trust and integrity for the Register and all gas safety awareness campaigns. The brand is a registered trade mark of HSE and is used under licence by the Health and Safety Executive for Northern Ireland (HSENI) on behalf of registered businesses and their engineers.

Gas Safe Register register provides enhanced levels of service and clearly written rules of registration. There are also services and benefits designed to improve the registration scheme and promote gas safety. We will continue to raise public awareness of the register and promote a better understanding of gas safety for everyone.

If you are currently training to qualify in gas work and wish to set up business on your own, you will need to register with Gas Safe Register on completion of your course. You can do this through our website GasSafeRegister.co.uk or by calling Customer Services on 0800 408 5577.

If you used CORGI registered installers as contractors you will need to ensure you now use Gas Safe registered engineers. You can check their registration or find a Gas Safe registered engineer through our website GasSafeRegister.co.uk or call 0800 408 5500.

If you think an engineer is not registered, just call 0800 408 5500 or let us know via our website, GasSafeRegister.co.uk
